This month’s newsletter features a new blog post from the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU), new resources from EDUCAUSE, and an opportunity to join a virtual interactive session about advising technologies.

Wherever you sit at the student success table, we invite you to join the ASN as we support holistic advising redesign efforts that create better personal, academic, and professional outcomes for all students regardless of their racial or socioeconomic background. Visit the ASN website to learn more about our mission, approach, and network partners, and join us on Twitter and LinkedIn.

The ASN wants to hear from you! Please let us know about your efforts to support students as they work toward achieving their personal, academic, and career goals.

Foundational Data: Ensure ability to understand demographic data related to the influence of career advising programs on student experiences and job and career outcomes.

Topic, Timing, & Teams: Strategically integrate career development and sessions into advising to support student experiences.

Scalable Solutions: Ensure career integrations reach high-risk and underserved student populations.

Instruction & Curriculum: Embed career development within course and coursework and into advising activities.

Faculty & Staff Champions: Identify professional development for faculty and staff to actively engage in advising and promote across campuses.
#ICYMI: Why Analytics is Your Superpower

On August 9, EDUCAUSE published a new showcase series: Why Analytics is Your Superhero. The showcase includes reports, articles, links to other media that explore how analytics can help colleges and universities:

- advance institutional goals
- strengthen student outcomes
- improve quality and efficiency
- and enhance teaching, learning, and research.

Leveraging technology to support student engagement

Nicole Engelbert, Vice President of Higher Education Development for Oracle, addresses how student engagement extends far beyond the (virtual) classroom to areas including financial aid and academic advising.

Developing racial justice statements and taking campus action

NASPA–Student Affairs Administrators in Higher Education and the National Association of Diversity Officers in Higher Education published Moving From Words to Action: The Influence of Racial Justice Statements on Campus Equity Efforts. This report is the second part of a two-part research analysis that examines findings from a content analysis of racial justice statements made in the spring and summer of 2020.

Decreasing structural racism in higher education

Another Inside Higher Ed feature on how remediation and transfer policies impact and increase structural racism in higher education.

Mission

Our mission is to help institutions build a culture of student success, with a focus on Black, Latinx, Indigenous, Asian, and Pacific Islander students, as well as students from low-income backgrounds, by identifying, building, and scaling equitable and holistic advising solutions that support all facets of the student experience.

Vision

Our vision is a higher education landscape that has eliminated race and income as predictors of student success through a reformed approach to advising, in which all students are supported through a seamless, personalized postsecondary experience that creates better personal, academic, and professional outcomes.
