

The Advising Success Network Newsletter | July 2022

We are excited to announce two new resources for the field - a new HBCU resource collection from The National Resource Center for the First-Year Experience and Students in Transition, and the 2022 Driving Towards a Degree Report. We also highlight an opportunity to contribute to a new book on Academic Advising and Social Justice.

Wherever you sit at the student success table, we invite you to join the ASN as we support holistic advising redesign efforts that transform people, processes, and technologies to create better personal, academic, and professional outcomes for all students regardless of their racial or socioeconomic background. Visit the ASN website to learn more about our mission, approach, and network partners, and join us on Twitter and LinkedIn.

The ASN wants to hear from you! Please let us know about your efforts to support students as they work toward achieving their personal, academic, and career goals.

Resources for your campus

NEW HBCU Resource Collection

From ASN partner, The National Resource Center on the First-Year Experience and Students in Transition, this three-part resource collection foregrounds best advising practices rooted in a culturally relevant framework that affirms HBCU students and their unique perspectives, lived experiences and need for community connections.

Mission

Our mission is to help institutions build a culture of student success, with a focus on Black, Latinx, Indigenous, Asian, and Pacific Islander students, as well as students from low-income backgrounds, by identifying, building, and scaling equitable and holistic advising solutions that support all facets of the student experience.

Vision

Our vision is a higher education landscape that has eliminated race and income as predictors of student success through a reformed approach to advising, in which all students are supported through a seamless, personalized postsecondary experience that creates better personal, academic, and professional outcomes.
